

Title: Collaboration & Consultation in School & Home

Credits: 1.5 Type-2 Credits

Presenter: Elizabeth Theo-Moloney, MA, BCBA

This workshop covers different strategies and tools to be used in fostering effective collaboration and communication on a team of professionals in the field of education. Elizabeth discusses the theory of consultation and briefly reviews the history of how consulting began and developed in the education system today. She will also discuss different communication methods and problem solving techniques needed when collaborating with professionals from different disciplines.

Objectives: Participants will...

- Review the research on and history of consultation and identify three different consultation methodologies
- Identify the roles of the consultant
- Be able to describe the importance of effective collaboration for the student/client
- Identify the application of various problem solving techniques when confronted with resistance